NC Biomedical Innovation Network Symposium

Cutting-Edge Approaches to Drug and Device Development

The North Carolina Biomedical Innovation Network is a partnership between leading preclinical research and development organizations within the state. This full-service contract research network is dedicated to providing a “one-stop shop” for the development and commercialization of pharmaceutical, biotechnology, and medical device products. The Network is led by The Hamner Institutes for Health Sciences, SyneCorLABS, and the University of North Carolina (UNC) Good Laboratory Practice (GLP) Bioanalytical Facility.
